ABOUT US

Motown Writers Network (MWN) was created in 2000 to educate, and market writers on and off the Internet.

With over 600+ members, MWN has become one of the largest Michigan literary organizations.

MWN has several projects in the works. Not only does the group have an offline discussion called Detroit Writers Galore, but an online social networking site of its own and also a Myspace page. The Michigan Literary Network was also created under Motown Writers Network dedicated to connecting readers to local authors.

ESSENCE OF MOTOWN LITERARY JAM

Motown Writers Network & Equity in Partnership present the 2008 5th Annual Essence of Motown Literary Jam. This 2008 event, the one and only Detroit writing conference of its kind, hosted by Motown Writers Network and The Michigan Literary Network, will feature national and local authors and events; workshops ranging from self-publishing to editing and marketing; celebrity book signings and social gatherings with other writers and readers.

The conference, scheduled for November 6 to 8, 2008 is the ideal event for you to initiate a relationship with Motown Writers Network. Our aim is to reach two audiences: experienced and new writers and the general reading public.

We have identified Sonia Sanchez, the well-respected poet and writer as the keynote speaker for our 2008 event and are in the process of confirming her attendance.

The three-day conference will begin on Thursday, Friday, November 6 and ends on Sunday, November 8 and consists of the following:

- Thursday, Nov. 6 – Book Fair
- Friday, Nov. 7 – Keynote Reception and Awards Ceremony
- Saturday, Nov. 8 – Town Hall & Literary Workshops
- Sunday, Nov. 9 – Publisher's Breakfast

WE ARE WHERE YOU ARE!
